User has attributes with a key attribute that is unique because User id should be unique. The relationship is 1 to many because one user can create many posts.

Post has attributes with one attribute being the reference because it will be used in the repost and other being unique because each post has to be different from each other. The relationship is one to many because one post can be reposted several times.

Repost has attributes with one being unique because each repost has to be different from another repost. Userid and postid are foreign attributes so we know whose post is it and who repost. User to repost relationship is one to many because one user can repost many times.